

Problems with my memory

I seem to have problems remembering things especially my understanding of how much time it's been in a given amount of time

Let's take for example 2015 around the time when I was watching Dantdm's videos (judging by how I remember that at that time the last video Dan made was of the episode where he fought a silver dragon in a jungle (I was shocked that that was the last video he made but it might have just been me thinking that a main video was the same as a latest video))

I know that it was 7 years ago but my brain doesn't seem to have context of how long this number of years actually is

Also it feels like time hasn't passed at all ever since 2020 even though it's been 2 freaking years

Which is probably why I hated Spider Man No Way Home as much ( even though I still would've hated it even if I had Nostalgic feelings towards it since that's the worst trait a Movie could have unless there's substance and story that actually makes sense and is established as working that way )

I have literally no Nostalgia left in me for anything even though I still remember how I used to watch Tobey's Spider man movies as a little kid... or at least the spider man 3 poster on a notebook and a DVD of spider man 1

The only things I have nostalgic feelings towards are for videos that I've watched in 2017-2018 those were the days when I had a different channel like AMVs

---

Now I'm in Kutaisi

The problem is that after the house got a significant change after the renovation, I already miss the old design I should've made an entire video of the tour of the house before it was changed because now it'll be impossible to revisit it through anything other than photos

To give you some context I lived in that version of the house since I was an infant and could barely walk

I remember being lifted up and then down to the ground outside the window for me to walk around outside, there was a big place where there was supposed to be a building but they stopped building it by the time they made the... supports, now there's an entire building there at least it's been there for a year but I didn't comment about it

Also the house's rooms were all connected like a square so you could walk around in them and get back to the same place, also there was a small grey house that Grandpa built which sadly isn't there anymore

My head hurts, I'm tired and I miss the past

Handful

Glad

My first phone was a flip phone and it had an Atari style
Sonic game in it

My second one was huaway

And the third was a small iphone